

Abstract

The invention relates to a material whose technical properties, in particular its optical properties, give it excellent suitability as a decoration material. The material involves oligomeric cycloolefins, in particular cycloolefin homo-oligomers, and also cycloolefin co-oligomers, a characteristic feature of these being a high refractive index and a high Abbé number.